ALLIANCE (O.,) March 28.-Coxey' army broke camp after a good night's rest on clean straw and breakfast of fried bam and pork, bread and coffee. At 9 o'clock this morning it left with 193 men in line by actual count. The next camp will be at Salem, thirteen miles distant. It is scheduled to reach there by 2 p.m., but the thaw of yes-terday, follow by the freeze hast night rendered the roads rough, and the en-of the journey will probably not be

A WOE-BEGONE CROWD.

A WOE-BESCONE CROWD.

GARFIELD (O.) March 28.—The weary "commonweal" struggled into Befoit at noon, five miles out of Alliance and seventy-two miles from Pittsburgh. The march was broken at Niles Junction, where Marshal Browne called a halt for half an hour. Horn-blowing and chaffing from the villagers greeted the woe-begone army.

Some of the boys had several bushels of snowballs prepared for the army, but the average appearance of the men was so forlorn that they were allowed to pass through unmolested. Several men deserted, and there is much grumbling. The army, seventy-nine strong, passed through Salem at 3 o'clock p.m., and was jeered by the people of the village. Owing to the rough roads the marchers have not been able to make schedule time.

COX BY 10 CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, March 28.—"Gen." Coxey, of the good roads army, arrived here this morning, and went at once to the stockwards to see about the sale of a consignment of horses. It was said he would come to the city later to talk with those interested in the movement to Washington.

with those interested in the informent to Washington.

When Coxey appeared at the horse-sale at the stock yards he was greeted by loud cheers and calls for a speech. Coxey's borses brought about 4450 while he was not expecting less than $1000, and with this for a cue he roundly scored existing conditions, charging the hard-times to "a lack of .noney." This evil, he said, he proposed to remedy by compelling the government to ssue bonds for $500,000,000. Coxey's Chicago lieutenant, Albert Mason, claims that he will leave for the East on Saturday with 5000 men. At present the 5000 is represented by the foregoing.

Coxey took dinner at the Auditorium, and left at 4:45 p.m. on the Pennsylvania road. He will reach Salem tomorrow in time to! take up the march.

SALEM'S RECEPTION.

SALEM'S RECEPTION.

SALEM (O.,) March 28.—Salem has treated the Coxey army most gener-ously in food and shelter and recruits. Shortly after 3 o'clock the army filed into town, seventy-nine strong. Probably three thousand people gave them a silent welcome. Mayor Northrop provided two halls as aleeping quarters. Quantities of food, such as coffee, bread, meat, sandwiches and ten dozen bolled eggs, had been prepared by a committee of citizens.

Sixteen men joined the army here.
Three of the men are sick under a docformed that two hundred striking pot-ters at East Liverpool would join the army.

THE DENVER BRIGADE.

DENVER, March 28.—The Denver contingent for Coxey's army met to-day and decided to take up the march for Washington on Saturday morning. They number about fifty men and expect to be reinforced at Colorado Springs and Pueblo. They will not walk, but expect to capture an east-bound freight-train.

Many of the men have no idea of going on to the national capital, but will desert the first time that they have an opportunity of securing work.

A large military band is being organized here in the interest of Coxey.

FRY'S FORCES FAMISHED.

MEMPHIS, March 28.—Voluminous reports received by the Associated Press from Sierra Blanca, Tex., are to the effect that Gen. Fry's army, 400 strong, are threatened with starvation on the unsheltered prairie. Many of the men are unable to stand or walk, being tamished. The industrials announce that they will help themselves tomorrow if relief does not come.

EL PASO, March 28.—"Gen." Fry, who is at Sierra Blanca, ninety miles east of here, with 470 men, today wired A. L. Whiteside of this city, saying: "We need provisions and box-car transportation to San Antonio. Can anything be done for us?" This afternoon 3200 worth of provisions for the hungrymen was forwarded by express.

General Manager Galveston, Harrisburgh and San Antonio Railway, Houston: Reliable reports have reached me that your company and your lines, in other words, the Southern Pacific, now dominating your line, has brought into Texas from other States about seven hundred men and left them at or near Findlay in the desert, where they are being as much as murdered by starvation and exposure. As your company and the other that dominates it have brought them into Texas you must carry them out or transport them to some place of refuge. You are given a reasonable time to do your duty, in the premises, or failing, submit to the consequences from the State of Texas. Take due notice that this state will not submit to such wholesale murder of any human being on her soil without testing the company's life and every right claimed by it under Texas laws. (Signed)

Governor.

The general marrager replied, denying the accuracy of the Governor's information. Continuing, he said that the industrials compelled the company to haul them. "They seek to seize our trains and appropriate the property, against persistent remonstrance and the destruction of our legal rights, and, in spite of our appeals to you, supported by proof which your reply shows that you held. Are we to understand that the law is not to be used to interfere for our protection? We have simply relused to surrender our trains and yield our property to them. We have so far taken no affirmative action, and have not taken or contemplated a single step in the premises except in obedience to the plainest provisions of the law, and any reports to you to the contrary are wholly untrue.

"If we are falling in any duty we are well aware how to cheerfully perform it if pointed out. While the tem have reached their position by force, overcoming us, and while we are not under the slightest obligations, legal or moral, to do so, nevertheless we will order our trains to take them to El Paso if you so desire, but no farther, and with the expectation that the company nor its employees will be subjected to any penalties prescribed by any ordinance of such city for the voluntary carrying of such men into their limits. This is purely gratuitous, without the slightest recognition of legal or other obligation resting upon us in the premises or any lawful right or any power on your part to require and enforce it."

To this the Governor replied: "You are advised that the State of Texas stands by its notice to you of yesterday, and will, not multiply words on this subject."

Nothing more is expected until the return of the Orion.

BALTIMORE, March 28.—A letter from the master of the schooner Frank M. Noyes, dated at Bluefields, Nicaragua, March 19, says that the Noyes passed the wreck of U.S.S. The foremast of the Kearsarge was gone, but the main and mizzen-masts were still standing. The mainyard was hanging by trusses, cockbilled, and the smokestack was still standing. There was some fighting going on at Bluefields on the date of the letter.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 28.-Gov William McKinley and party reached Minneapolis from Chicago this morning. In St. Paul they were joined by Lieut.-Gov. Clough, John Goodnow, Lieut.-Gov. Clough, John Goodnow, president of the Republican State Republican League, and others. Upon arrival here they were met by the students of the State University to the dents of the State University to the number of 600, and the University Republican Club. The party was escorted to the West Hotel, where 4000 people had assembled. Along the route to the hotel the band had been playing "Marching Through Georgia," the refrain of which was "While we are booming McKinley," and the famous "Ski-uh-mah" yell of the university students also rent the air. students also rent the air.

The Governor's reception at the ho-tel was only such as 4000 strong Northwestern throats could give. The North Star Quartette sang "All Hall," ex-pressing the sentiment "McKinley leads, we follow"; after which the Governor ascended the staircase and was introduced by President Goodnow. He directed his remarks particularly to the students, and declared it was to the young men of the country that all parties must look. During his address he declared that the people of the country never wanted to vote in all their history as they did now.

Later, the Governor was driven to the Exposition building, where the State League of Republican Clubs was in session. There he made another address, in which he said nobody could tell what would happen, and nobody knew what the Democratic Congress would do. He then went on about the principles of protection.

knew what the Democratic Congress would do. He then went on about the principies of protection.

Still later in the day he was driven under the guidance of Bishop Fowler. Gov. Nelson and Mayor Eustis, to several State institutions, and made a splendid address to the pupils of the Central High School.

In the evening he was escorted to the Exposition building, which was packed to overflowing with people from all parts of the Northwest to hear the leading address of the day. The meeting was presided over by Gov. Nelson, who, without formality, introduced the Ohio Governor. As the latter rose to speak, he was enthusiastically greeted by 8000 people, representing every Republican organization of the State. He spoke from manuscript for an hour and a half, and the closest attention was paid to his remarks.

In introducing his remarks, Gov. Mc-Kinley said; "The platform and candidate of the great convention assembled in 1892, admirable as they were, were rejected by the people at the election following, but the people had no sooner spoken than they realized their great mistake—a mistake which they now feel more sensibly and regret more deeply. The principles enunciated at that convention were true then. They are true now. They are as dear to Republicans now, as they are better understood and more ardently supported by the great body of the people in the year 1894, than they were in the years 1894. While the Republican party falled to carry the election the cause.

by the great body of the people in the year 1894 than they were in the year 1892. While the Republican party failed to carry the election, the cause for which it contended did not fail. It survived the awful disaster and shines more gloriously than ever."

Before reciting the experiences and changes which have befallen the country during the past year, and speaking of the panic, he recited the principles enunclated in the platform of 1892, namely? A protective tariff, reciprocity, the use of both gold and silver, honest elections, the extension of our foreign commerce, the restoration of our merchant marine, the creation of the navy, the maintenance of more friendly chant marine, the creation of the navy, the maintenance of more friendly relations with foreign powers and the affirmation of the Monroe doctring saying that like all Republican doc trines, they were unchangeable. He maintained that the victory of th saying that like all Republican doctrines, they were unchangeable.

He maintained that the victory of the Democrats was brought about by profuse and glittering promises and that it now stands demoralized on the field of performance, having signally failed to redeem a single pledge it made to the people. He quoted Dun's review of trade for 1893, and compared the gloomy prospects there presented with the report of the prosperous year of 1892. He then reviewed tariff legislation from 1790 down to the present time, showing that all the prosperous periods of this country were under a protective tariff.

Gov. McKinley said he had reviewed the Wilson bill-and found aothing but irritation and aggravation to the great industries of the country; no interest has gained by it. Continuing, he said: "It is true that sugar, an article of prime necessity and which the law of 1890 made free to the people, has been tariffed from 1 to 1 4-10 cents per pound, every cent of which will be paid by the consumers of the United States. But, doubtless as compensation for this added burden of upwards of $50,000,000 and in default of it, they have lowered the tariff on tobacco and have extended the bonded period for the warehousers of whisky, and given to the distillers eight years in which to pay the tax. They have restored the tariff on coal, but in fairness they should be credited with having taken the tariff of diamonds. I am not here to discuss rates or schedules. They are subject to change up or down as new conditions require it, but my insistence is that these changes must ever be governed by the protective principle. Rates may be, should be, and will be amended, as time, new processes of manufacture and changes in commercial conditions require. In closing, Gov. McKinley said: "The altogether too common idea that there is in fact little difference between the two parties, and that the country will prosper equally whoever may be in power, has been completely exploded by one year's trial of the Democratic party. May we not hope," he c Critical days of the past, when the people of the Northwest led the hosts of freedom in the great contest against the slave power, may inspire you to even greater effort in behalf of the fundamental principles of our government and of our industrial independence and prosperity?"

At the conclusion, Gov. McKinley was accorded a rising vote of thanks for his courtesy in visiting the Northwest and for the masterly effort presented.

After a brief speech by the president, Gov. McKinley's well-known form advanced up the aisle. The vast assemblage rose cheering, and the band played "My Country, Tis of Thee." President Goodnow presented the Governor, asked the audience to rise, and give three cheers, to which they responded. Gov. McKinley then made a stirring address, which, in main points, did not differ from the speech made at the Exposition building.

After the retirement of the Governor, the election of officers followed, John Goodnow of this city was re-elected Goodnow of this city was re-elected by acclamation as president, and J. W. BROADER LINES.

An Agreement Sought With Britain to Fix the Bering Sea Limits. WASHINGTON, March 28.—Minister Bayard has been pressing upon the at-tention of the British Foreign Office the necessity of speedy action upon the proposition to replace the existing mo-dus vivendi relative to the seal fisher-ies by one on broader lines, to conform more closely to the decision of the arbitrators. There is reason to believe that the British Ambassador here will soon receive authority to consummate an agreement by which the small differences respecting the extent of the closed zone can be adjusted on the basts of the 42d parallel. This would make it impossible for scaling vessels awfully to take scale anywhere in the Pacific north of the boundary between California and Oregon after May 1.

LONDON, March 28.—Atty-Gen. Sir Charles Russell will introduce in the House of Commons tomorrow a bill providing for the proper entorcement of the Bering Sea arbitration. No question of a new modus vivenid will be raised. It is understood that the bill will not be op-

United States Marshals, the Attorney-General says, are fearful that the judges will adjourn the courts unless money is furnished for jurors and witnesses. WASHINGTON, March 28.—The sur-prise of the Pollard-Breckinridge trial prise of the Pollard-Breckinridge trial today was the unexpected appearance of Miss Pollard's old lover, Rankin Roselle, a Kentucky schoolmaster. His deposition had been read in the case, but to make his testimony doubly sure he addressed the court in person, and no sconer had he taken the stand than Madelipe Pollard glided in for the first time this week, from the office of her attorney across the street, where she was to be sent for when her pres-tince was desired. Probably she will be in court tomorrow to face her silver-haired accuser, for the attorneys de-clare that there will be positively no longer any postponement of the testiriony of the principal in the case, and that Col. Breckinridge will take the stand without fall in the course of the Most of the testimony today was in the form of a deposition, and much of it was of a character which can only be published in expurgation. The depositions regarding which Judge Bradley had expressed his regret that they could not be excluded on general they could not be excluded on general principles, were recited, and the justi-fication of the scathing comments on them was self-evident. Some of the language employed by Hiram Kauff-mann and John Brandt would hardly be tolerated in a well-regulated bar-room These gentlemen admitted in a matter of-fact way their tendencies toward habitual drunkenness and marital in-fidelity, and the court admitted their indelity, and the court admitted their statements unexpunged, as he remarked, that the jury might judge of the character of the witnesses.

Col. Breckinridge's private secretary was one of the witnesses of the day, and another was Col. Hay, one of the best-known men in Washington, and incidentally an expert on penmanship, who was subjected to further examination upon the principles employed in detecting forgeries. It looks as if a hard fight had been precipitated over the authenticity of the black-bordered letter, which was made public yesterday exclusively by the Associated Press.

The case of the defense is drawing to a close with the appearance of Col.

THE TESTIMONY.

R. R. Rossell Tells of His Engagement With

Madeline Pollard.
WASHINGTON, March 28.—At the opening of the Pollard-Breckin-ridge trial today, E. B. Hay, an ex-pert in handwriting, was subjected to a long and searching cross-exami-nation to determine the value of his testimony as an expert. When this ended, a young man named Worthington, a clerk in the office of Breck-& Shelby, at Lexington as put on the stand. He tes that in response to a request from Breckinridge, he made a search among the latter's business letters in the office and found the letters of which Miss Pollard disputed the au-thorship. This was the only private letter he found. All others were bus-letter he found. All others were busfiness letters.

A stir was created in the courtroom
by the calling of the name of R. R.
Rossell, the young Kentuckian who was engaged to Miss Pollard at one time. He told of his doings as salesman, teacher. Superintendent of County Schools and Deputy County
Clerk. Asked if he knew Madeline Pollard, he answered in the affirmative. At that point the proceedings were interrupted by the appearance of Miss Pollard, which evidently embarrassed the witness, who dropped his eyes and nervously fingered the Bible lying near him.

In response to a question as to the circumstances of his first meeting with Miss Pollard, Rossell was even more embarassed. He said it was in October or November, 1883, when he was employed in a store in Cincinnati. "I was at the time on the fifth foor. A messenger bey came and announced that a lady wanted to see me. I went out to see who she was.
It was Madeline Pollard. She introduced herself to me. Said she had heard of me often and wanted to see me. She said she desired to go to Wesleyan College and asked me if I would go with her, which I did."

Did she tell you how she happened to know you?"

"She had heard her cousin, Nellie Olliver, speak of me often. I knew Nellie Olliver. We were received in the office of the college by Dr.
Brown. I was not acquainted with him, but I introduced myself and Miss Pollard. She stated her intention of entering school there and said she had a guardian, Mr. Rhodes, who would be along next day to complete the arrangements. She stated to Dr.
Brown that I was a personal friend of hers and asked him to grant me the privilege of calling there whenever I wanted. From that time on I called very regularly for the purpose of seeing her, sometimes twice a week, sometimes three times."

"Did you see her alone or with where persons?"

"Most frequently

"Did your visits lead to friendship?"
Rossell (briskly.) At first I had an admiration for the young lady.
My admiration led to love, and love to engagement. We became engaged about the Christmas holidays.
Miss Pollard stated first that Rhodes was her guardian. Afterward she said that she was desirous of getting an education, but, having no one to help her, and Rhodes having proposed matrimony, she became sungaged to him on condition that he would pay for her schooling. She said that from the start she did not intend to carry out the contract."
Rossell testified that during their engagement Miss Pollard expressed great affection for him, frequently kissed and caressed him and often sat in his lap. She asked him to act when Rhodes was present as though he (Rossell) was not acquainted with her. When he told her he was going to Chicago, she expressed a wish to accompany him. He told her she might do so and she put-on her clock and hat, saying that her trunk was packed. He had been obliged to tell her: "Under the circumstances, we had not better go until Juna."

Miss Pollard once mentioned to him the mock marriage between herself and Julien. "Between whom?" asked Jüdge Bradley, perhaps remembering the affidavit in which Julien had sworn that a mock marriage between Owen Tinsley and Miss Pollard was performed by him (Julien). As to the reason why he let the engagement with the plaintiff drop, he said it was because she allowed him to kiss and and hug her in way he did not like in the woman he loved. At the afternoon session. Rossell testified that Miss Pollard was a mature woman at the time. Last April he made application for a position as gauger in the internal revenue service, but when his friends persuaded him to run for Superintendent of Schools, he withdrew his application. He did not know Col. Breckinridge when he applied for the internal revenue position. His application was withdrawn before he made the deposition in this case. On cross-examination, he admitted his application was withdrawn the same day the deposition was made. The point of this is the fact that Miss Pollard in her examination declared that Rossell made his depositon of Hiram Kauffman, the Lexington butcher, was taken up after the cross-examination of Rossell was concluded.

Mr. Kauffman had known Miss Pollard when she was living in Lexington in 1833. He said he was living between one assignation house and a bawdy house. There were some words not customarily heard in the best society in this statement, but with the consent of Judge Bradley the lawyers substituted a milder term. Once he had visited the assignation house with Jim Rhodes. "Jim," he said, "I want you to see my girl," Miss Pollard was there and sat on Rhodes's lap and Rhodes had hugged and kissed her. On another occasion Miss Pollard had retured with another fellow. Miss Pollard had retured with another fellow. Miss Pollard had retured with another fellow. week after the first call and always found Miss Pollard there. He thought she remained there six weeks in all in May and June, 1883. The witness had indulged in some profanity and obscenity, part of which he credited to Miss Pollard as quotations of her remarks. He had seen her as "drunk as the devil," and had been obliged to help her to bed.

The deposition of John A. Brandt, a school janttor of Lexington, followed. He said he first met Miss Pollard in 1883, in a house kept by Lena Singleton, who is reputed to be the mistress of James Rhodes. The plaintiff seemed to be about 17 years of age. Brandt had often taken Miss Pollard riding, according to his story. He had often where in the street, as he was a married man. When asked for what purpose he had visited Lena Singleton, Brandt said the law did not compel a man to answer such questions. The commissioner urged him, and then. Brandt said the law did not compel a man to answer such questions. The commissioner urged him, and then, with the observation that he supposed they had all been there, Brandt told that he went for immoral purposes. Brandt had employed language which would not be admitted. He described Miss Pollard as a "spare-maide woman," with dark hadr, and said she was then going to school.

Pollard as a "spare-made woman," with dark hair, and said she was then going to school.

Brandt's testimony was somewhat contradictory as to when he first met Miss Pollard, saying once he had met her first in 1881, and again in 1883. He was introduced to Miss Pollard in Lena Singleton's house with a woman he had met at a house of ill-fame in Cinginnait, but he could not remember her name, nor the location of the house. In explaining one of his lapses of memory, 'the witness said that, at the time, 'I' must have been pretty drunk, as I pretty generally was." He could not remember whether he was drunk at the time of the alkeged meeting with Madeline Pollard at Lena Singleton's, Deponent said he expected that he had made improper remarks to Miss Pollard, but declined to say that he had taken ilberties with her.

The depositions of Letcher Lusby, Chief of Police of Lexington for six years past, revealed that he had known Lena Singleton; that she kept a "sporting-house," as he characterized it, although he was careful to explain that he had never been there. Mr. Wilson objected to a question.

though he was careful to explain that he had never been there. Mr. Wilson objected to a question as to Lena Singleton's reputation for chastity, but Judge Bradley remarked that, considering what the witness had said of her.

her diaracter might be inferred. A question as to whether Rhodes had sent money by express through an office in which Lusby had been employed was objected to, but was admitted, and it appeared that Rhodes had sent money to a young lady at the Wesleyan College. When asked about her, he had said that she was his niece.

The deposition of W. L. Jones, an Alderman of Lexington, showed that he had been acquainted with the family of Col. Brown of Wesleyan College in 1883 and 1884. He had known Miss Pollard, and understood that she was frequently visited by Roselle. She had told him that Rhodes was paying for her tultion; that she had promised to marry him, but did not intend to carry out her contract, as he was an ignorant old farmer.

With this the court adjourned.

Wile Grieved Because it. Was a Pet, and Hubby Sorry for it Was a Ratter. (Brooklyn Eagle:) Mr. and Mrs. John Garner live at the corner of Benson avenue and De Bruyns lane, Bath Beach. They have no children. Up to a few weeks ago, they were the possessors of a black-and-tan dog named Daisy, aged 4 years. Daisy weighed about six pounds, was considered to be unusually intelligent, and was the pet of Mr. and Mrs. Garner. A short time ago the couple moved to another house, on Eighteenth avenue. Here Daisy became Ill. After a brief sickness, despite tender nursing and watching and the skill of a physician, Daisy died.

Mr. and Mrs. Garner, the latter, especially, were much affected. They immediately moved back to the old house, where they now live. Once settled there, Mrs. Garner decided that the dog must be properly laid at cest. "Poor Daisy must have a funeral," she sobbed. Thereupon a casket was ordered from a local undertaker. The remains of Daisy were wrapped carefully in a shroud of red fiannel, with the head only showing. They were then deposited in the casket, and, a few days ago, the box was buried in the garden alongside the cottage. A neat mound was banked up over the grave. "He was fond of the school children, too," said Mrs. Garner. "He would wait in the front garden for them every fine day, as they passed to and fro. On stormy days we would not let him out, because he was too delicate."

About Lscs.

(Worthington's Magazine:) The seemingly extravagant price paid for some kinds of lace is easily accounted for when it is known how difficult and slow is the process of manufacture. The Valenciennes lacemaker, working twelve hours a day, can only produce one-third of an inch in a week. Every piece of Alencon point passes through the hands of twelve workmen. The best Brussels thread is spun in underground cells, because the dry air above would cause the thread to snap. Upon the worker as she sits in the dark is directed one ray of light; but the thread is so fine that her delicate fingers are better guides than her eyes. Very many soon lose their sight, and the high pay the lacemaker earns is proportionate to the acknowledged unhealthiness of the occupation. Old lace is more variable in price, and some of it can be counterfeited by imitations. Of some varigities, however, the secret is lost, as of point d'Argentan, which continued to be made upon the banks of the Orne till the French Revlution stopped the demand for a time and gave the peasants other means of earning their bread.

HOUSE.—When the Speaker's gavel fell today there were less than eighty members on the floor. The House proceeded with some routine business pending a report expected from the Rules Committee for the disposition of the contested-election cases of O'Nell-Joy and English-Hilborn.
Letters from the Secretary of the Treasury and Attorney-General were transmitted asking for additional appropriations for the secret service and the United States courts.

Mr. Outhwaite, from the Committee on Rules, reported a bill limiting the debate to two hours each on the election cases, the final vote then to be taken.

Ifon cases, the final vote then to be taken.

Mr. Outhwaite demanded the previous question on the adoption of the rule. The vote on ordering the question resulted 164 to nothing. Mr. Reed made the point of no quorum. The Speaker voted in the affirmative. The result was greeted with applause. This is the first time for a week that the Democrats have mustered a quorum.

Mr. Reed criticised the disposition to hustle business through the House without discussion. He said the purpose of the Republicans had been to call attention to a great outrage, the House and country being in the habit of paying little attention to election cases.

House and country being in the habit of paying little attention to election cases.

Mr. Outhwaite replied by saying that more time for discussion of these cases in the first place had been offered. He also reviewed the action of the Fifty-first Congress on election cases, and pointed out the quick manner in which disposition was then made of the cases.

Mr. Reed moved to commit the rule, with instructions to report a rule allowing further time.

The Speaker was inclined to think this motion should not be entertained.

Mr. Reed argued the case on constitutional grounds.

The Speaker held that the motion to recommit is equivalent to a proposition to amend. Amendments were not in order until the previous question had been ordered. Therefore the motion of the gentleman from Maine was not in order.

On the question of adopting the report of the committee, Mr. Outhwaite demanded the yeas and nays. The division having developed the lack of a cuorum, the Republicans again refrained from voting. The resolution of the Committee on Elections, deciaring John J. O'Neth entitled to the seat for the Eleventh District of Missouri, was read, and Mr. Patterson of Tennessee was recognized on the side of the majority report, and Mr. Daniel of New York on the side of the minority.

Mr. Patterson's statement involved a very elaborate and extended explanation of the Missouri bakot law. Representative Daniel of New York followed with an explanation of the Australian ballot law of Missouri. As to the objection that the initials of the judges were not on the ballot, Mr. Daniel contended that this was an error to be charged against the voters.

Mr. Paynter of Kerstucky followed, arguing that the absence of the initials.

Mr. Barthold, from Missouri, contended that the Republican vote of Missouri amounted to 83 per cent. of the Democratic votes, and the gerrymander had enabled them to secure a representation of only 15 per cent. of the Democratic vote. Now it was proposed to cut this down one-half. The election machinery was all in the hands of the Democratic.

Mr. Joy of Missouri, whose seat was the question at issue, argued that a recount of ballots had built up his majority. The grounds of the contest, he claimed, as finally made, were not valid in the notice of the contest served upon him, as required by law.

Mr. Reed pointed out that the Missouri statutes provided that judges are required to put their initials on ballots. Further, that judges shall not deposit the ballots unless it has the initials. He held that this was in order to give the voter a chance to rectify the omission if the initial was at first omitted. He said it was proposed to disfranchise over nine hundred voters on account of the fault of the judges.

Formal Ratification of the Peace Among the Warring Roads-General, Local and Personal Railroad

Every so often a rumor gains cur-rency to the effect that the Southern Pacific Company has acquired control of the Los Angeles Terminal road. As a usual thing the rumor has been disregarded, but it bobs up again this regarded, but it bobs up again this week in a way that may have some bearing on the harbor question. The rumor, as usual, is wholly groundless. This is declared officially by the Terminal people, and those who know anything of that road's owners and the high estimation in which they hold their property will not readily believe that the Southern Pacific, rich as it is, would be able or willing to pay the During the past ten days the special evangelistic services conducted by the evangelistic services conducted by the evangelists, Mason, Chandler and Scott, have been steadily growing in interest and results. Yesterday meetings were held in the main hall, No. 110 West-Scoond street, from 10 to 12 a.m. and from 2 to 4:45 o'clock. In the evening a street meeting was held at 7 o'clock in front of the Natick House, on First street. At 7:3) a special song service, assisted by an orchestra and a male quartetite, was conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Chandler in the main hall. At 8 o'clock Evangelist C. S. Mr. Mason is an exceptionally forcible speaker, and presents the truth in so plain and practical a manner as to win his audiences from the start. The Terminal road was built as an investment to make big returns in the future, when another transcon-tinental line seeks an entrance to Los Angeles and her seaports. Half a dozen Eastern railroad presidents and a number of great capitalists are backing the Terminal road, and are amply able to make up the annual deficit in its earnings. The road has no bonded indebtedness, and its stock is held by a corporness, and its stock is held by a corporation even closer than the Southern Pacific. The Terminal would be a good "buy" by the Southern Pacific, as would the Santa Fe, to extend the power of monopoly, but there is small likelihood of any such transfer, as long as there remains a chance of building a new line to connect this section with an existing road to form another transcontinental route. The Terminal road thus far has cost $3,000,000.

There were no new developments yesterday in the Platt-Harris blackmail case, at least so far as the prosecution on that charge is concerned. Platt still languishes in a cell at the City Prison and so far no one has interested bimself to secure bail for him. He is becoming very restive under his confinement, and, yesterday afternoon manifested considerable impatience when his case was referred to. It is believed that, when Platt finds that he has been deserted and that an effort will be made to shoulder the responsibility for the crime upon him, he will, in police parlance "squeal," in which case there will be some further highly sensational disclosures.

It was stated yesterday afternoon FRANCISCO, March 28.-Charles F. Crocker, first vice-president of the Southern Pacific Railroad, was seen today regarding the resignation of C. P. Huntington, H. E. Relative to the retirement from the directorate of the Central Pacific road of President Huntington and Directors C. P. Huntington, Charles F. Croker and Stephen T. SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—T. H. Hubbard, who is attorney for Edward Searles, and who was the representative of the Hopkins interests in the Central and Southern Pacific companies, said today that the significance in the recent changes in the Central Pacific directorate was, more than anything else, a pacification of the English shareholders.

The Examiner says: "It is known that those gentlemen are violently protesting against the cutting off of their dividends, and something had to be done to quiet their nerves. They objected to a contract consummated by two boards of directors when the personnel of both was almost identical. They were surprised to learn that the directors of the Central and Southern Pacific companies had been making contracts with themselves that disastrously affected the interests of so contracts with themselves that disastrously affected the interests of so many outsiders. These complaints being heard, the personnel of the Central Pacific was agreed on so that no one should be called on to serve both companies at the same time. "Touching the settlement of the bond question, the indebtedness of the Central Pacific to the United States and the government's assumption of the

It is stated that both these directors are merely automata, elected to do the bidding of Huntington. The English shareholders have been making telegraphic demands for a more equitable consideration, and, in response to these demands, C. P. Huntington has directed his agents in the new directorate to make another alteration in the lease between the Southern Pacific and the Central Pacific.

"The Britishers," says the Examiner,
"asked that the provision for paying $1.300,000 in dividends to Central Pacific shareholders be restored to the clause which says that the payment of action. This is a sample of grim Western humor that the Londoners are expected to appreciate and applaud."

T. E. Gibbon, Esq., attorney for the Los Angeles Terminal Railroad, has returned from Washington, where he passed a brief season working in the interest of the San Pedro deep-water harbor. Mr. Gibbon says that the lack of money in the government treasury will militate against an early appropriation for any river or harbor improvement, as it has done in the past two years. It is expected that pending legislation may help replenish the treasury, and then the Los Angeles harbor will have a chance to receive its needed help. From conversations he held with various Congressmen, especially the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, he feels sanguine of the success of San Pedro's claim.

Santa Barbara to Honor Neptune.

A project is on foot in Santa Barbara to erect an heroic statue of Neptune, the god of the sea, on Castle Rock, in that city. The site is a particularly filting one for an artistic addition to the coast scenery, and the proposed plan is a most unique idea, which will enhance the beauty of the famous Boulevard. The proposition is to place on the rugged rock a figure of Neptune in a sitting posture, 35 feet high. To keep him company, two mermaids, each 10 feet in height, will recline beside the god of the briny deep. Other artificial accessions will be added to make the group more striking. Thomas B. Dibblee, the owner of Castle Rock, will consent to the proposed plan, and the City Council will favor employing a sculptor to undertake the work.

THE SILVER QUESTION-WHAT WILL THEY DO?

If the Bland bill is to be vetoed, as we are told, and, if it will be impossible to pass the bill over the veto, as is also stated, the question next arises as to what the government proposes to do in regard to silver. It certainly cannot supposed that a merely negative the necessities of the case. government of this country is appar-ently going backward, and drifting away from a reasonable recognition of the white metal, Germany, which has hitherto been one of the most determined opponents of silver coinage, is now preparing to increase its stock of silver currency. The Germans see plainly that more silver is needed for dreulation, or else, the wheels of comare likely to come to a standittee has already been appointed by the Reichstag to investithe merits of an increased coin age of silver, and is expected to report avorably. having been brought to the attention of the United States government by the Merican Minister at Washington.
As we have frequently stated, there is no possibility of effecting a definite and permanent settlement of the silver agreement. Meantime, however, the United States could do much to bring such an agreement by standing the basis of bimetallism, to do which it is by no means necessary to go to those extremes which the freeinage men aim at. If, on the other and. Fluropeian nations notice any wavoring on the part of the United States in its attitude toward silver, the oppoits of silver in those countries will be strengthened and the attainment of satisfactory agreement on the subfurther delayed.

Let silver be backed up and insured by a sufficient gold reserve in the treasso increased as to make it equal in value to a gold dollar, and the silver question will be measurably solved-

The workingmen of the country are them by such loud-mouthed agitators as Fry, Carl Browne and Coxey, and others of their ilk. It is their own personal ends that they are seeking.

Even the most extreme disciples of anarchy in America are beginning to plain whether the superintendent in charge of the department where the frauds took place was cognizant of the affair or not. He has been removed by the firm from his position, but has open their eyes a little more clearly to very recently that Anarchist of the Anarchists, who has been most ready to denounce our institutions—Johann Most been placed in charge of another de-partment. It is difficult there, and not come here with the hope of perpetuating their theories and of

The vast gulf between liberty and license this red-handed Anarchist has armament of our war vessels, thus not only placing lives in danger, but risk-ing the honor and fortune of the counat length discovered, and he is wise enough to admit that, with the liberty inted to the American citizen, the octrines of aniarchy are not called for ere, for men have liberty enough

There is a difference of $36,000,000 which the government is authorized by law to issue whenever it needs the currency. In the light of this fact, what is the need of Coxey's bill or of Coxey himself. Let the government "remove" both Coxey and Buckskin Browne to the guardhus.

The severe weather that is prevailing in the East is enough to strike terror into the thinly-clad ranks of the socalled "industrial army" that has taken up its march to Washington. It is an ill-advised measure that will work only wretchedness and woe to these fol-lowers of designing leaders. It is also wholly un-American in principle for the sovereign people to make such demonstrations against themselves. The party in power are the servants which these same unemployed helped to place in authority. It's a case of sowing the wind and reaping the whirlwind.

"Gen." Coxey's horses did not sell well at the Chicago stockyards yester day, and the "general," who had left temporarily in the lurch "army" in order to be present, delivered a tirade on the existing conditions, saying he proposed to compel the govern ment to issue bonds for $500,000,000. There may be some doubt as to "Gen." Coxey's ability to do the compelling but few will question that he would strain every nerve to take care of all bonds that might fall in his way, irrespective of his quartermaster's

There was a tremendous boom in wheat in Chicago yesterday and a difference of value of $1,250,000 on cash grain alone was one of the results. holders of wheat who have been suffering from "short" manipulation re couped themselves at the rate of 5 cents per bushel on 25,000,000 bushels, approximately, but as they have been sustaining losses at from 35 to 40 cents per bushel for some months a sucession of yesterday's booms would be

The increase in the amount of capital employed is more apparent than real, because the capital returns for the census of 1880 did not take cognizance of all items which properly go to make up live assets, and which for the first time are included in the present census.

the establishments designated as custom carding mills appear in the Pacific States.

The number of carding machines in California is set down at seventy.

The report of the internal commerce of the United States for 1890, compiled by the chief of the Bureau of Statictics of the Treasury Department, contains a resume of the condition of wool manufacture in California, supplied by State Labor Commissioner Tobin, of which the following extract is incorporated in the current census report:

"The woolen industry of California is at present on the decline, and the outlook is not hopeful. Millions in capital have been invested in the business, but the return was not sufficient to warrant the operation of more than two-thirds of the mills. Various causes are assigned, for this condition of uffairs; and chief among them are high wages, the high price of coal, and high freight rates. It is true that all classes of manufacture labor under similar disadvantages, but the disparity between the cost of production in California and the expense of turning out the same goods in the East is particularly noticeable in this industry. The result has been that Eastern manufactures undersell the local producers, to the ruination of California trade."

Superintendent Wright makes the following comment:

"In a general way each of the reasons here assigned for the decline of the wool manufacture in California may be accepted as correct. An examination of the wage tables of this report shows that the prevailing rates of that State are uniformly higher than in the East, while the difference in the cost of fuel is even greater. The condition of the industry to concentration has become marked, and that concentration of advances and that concentration in could be come marked, and that concentration could be come unarked, and that concentration and and the could ware.

this industry to concentration has be-come marked, and that concentration re-sults in certain well-defined advan-tages in the direction of cheaper pro-duction, which must perpetuate that "Except in isolated cases, as in Cali-fornia, the idle woolen mills discovered by the eleventh census were old mills, fornia, the idle woolen mills discovered by the eleventh census were old mills, whose machinery was antiquated, and whose failure was primarily due to lack of capital necessary to equip them for competition under modern conditions. It is only a question of time before mills which are employing obsolete machinery, without the capital to renew it, must succumb to the pressure of this competition. The margin of profit has greatly decreased. Conditions are thus establishing themselves radically different from those which governed in this industry during the first seventy-five years of our existence as a nation. In respect to nearly all of these idle establishments, therefore, it may be taken for granted that they were permanently idle, except in the contingency of an entire new machinery outfit. Many of them were located upon valuable water powers, and their rehabilitation is only a question of time, a number of them have already been re-equipped and put into operation since these statistics were gathered.'

In another of his reports, Col. Wright says:

"Twenty years ago the wool manufacture took a firm root on the Pacific Coast, and for a time promised to become one of the leading industries of that part of the country, particularly in blankets of such a superior quality that they met with a large and ready sale in the East. It also almed to supply the local demand for the cheaper fabrics for men's wear, stimulated thereto by the high rate of freight which prevailed. The census of 1890 shows a considerable decline in the value of the woolen goods manufactured in California."

The comparative statement of wool manufacture in California for the years 1890 and 1880 is as follows: Number of establishments, 1880, 9: 1890, 8: capital finvested, 1880, $1,676,500: 1890, $2,618,480; average number of employees, 1880, 835: 1890, 1264; total wages, 1880, 1934,318; 1890, $287,658; males above 15 years, 1880, 708; 1890, 922; females above 15 years, 1880, 18; 1890, 70; number of cards, 1880, 60; 1890, 70; number of spindles, 1880, 18,740; 1890, 125,98; cost of material used, 1880, $97,539; 1890, $788,316; total pounds, 1880, $3,574,850; 1890, $3,9471.

QUITE A PICNIC.

The Thayer Party's Ride to the Mexican Border.

the Party and Their Subsequent Woman.

Charles W. Thayer, alias Newkirk, the absconding bank clerk of Bay City, Mich., who was captured within two miles of the Mexican line on Tuesday, miles of the Mexican line on Tuesday, was brought back to this city by Chief Murphy of the Bay City police, and Detective Moffat of the local force, yesterday forenoon, and is now in the City Prison awaiting the arrival of the requisition papers from Sacramento, whither they were dispatched for Gov. Markhem to countersign Markham to countersign.

Thayer, who is a rather good-looking, bright and intelligent youth, 22 years of age, but looks and acts like a boy of 17, was accompanied in his flight by his wife, a very bright girl, some four years his junior, and his brother, who is just 21 years of age, both of whom appear to take the hardships appear to take the hardships they were compelled to undergo in their heroic efforts to save him from the consequences of his crime, as a matter of course and perfectly natural occurrences, under the circumstances. Mrs. Thayer, who was only married to he husband on July last, would, in fac willingly sacrifice her freedom, if per willingly sacrifice her freedom, if per-mitted to share his cell; but, this being ontrary to the rules and regulations he was compelled to content hersel husband on July last, would, in fact, willinkly sacrifice her freedom, if permitted to share his ceil; but, this being contrary to the rules and regulations, she was compelled to content herself by spending the afternoon in his company in "No. 7."

A Times reporter, upon seeking an interview with Thayer, found Mrs. Thayer in a highly-indigmant state of mind, on account of what she evidently considered the cruel treatment received by her husband at the hands of Jailer Johnson; but, after the devoted young couple had been temporarily transferred to the women's ceil, which is somewhat cleaner, larget and lighter than "No. 7," both talked freely and unreservedly of their history and flight. Thayer stated that his father was living, but that he had not seen him since he was a child. His mother was dead, and he had lived with the Newkirk family, by whom he had been treated as an adopted son ever since he could remember. He had been employed as a clerk in the savings bank at Bay City for five years, and, as collector and teller, had been intrusted with large sums of money at various times. His salary was totally inadequate to the amount of work he was required to perform, but that had nothing to do with his pecuhations, which exitended over a period of two years past, and he did not desire to make any statement for publication, at this time, as to what led him to be dishonest. The amount of his defalcation he did not even know himself.

The story of their flight, as related by Mrs. Thayer, is as follows: On Sunday morning, February 18 last, Thayer and his wife and brother left Bay City together, reaching Saginaw the same evening. Then they drove to Bridgeport, where they took the Flint and Pere Marquette Railroad to Flin. Here they boarded a Grand Trunk train for Valparaiso, Ind., whence they traveled to Blue Island Junction. After reaching Peru, over the Rock Island read, they took a through train to Kansas City, where they transferred to the Atchinson, Topeka and Santa Fe, and came through to San Francisco. Mrs. Tha back, and camped all night some fifteen miles south of town. Next morning they returned and met Mrs. Thayer by appointment at the southern extrémity of Main street. She was also on horseback, and partially disguised in order to look as much like a man as possible. In order to avoid dectction, the girl-wife had, after hiring a horse at a livery stable, ridden around to a sale yard on Aliso street, and traded the animal and $25 to boot for another of a totally different color.

The trio then started out, without any previous knowledge of the country they were about to traverse, for Mexico, their idea being to strike the coast and follow it down, avoiding all towns and thickly-populated settlements en route. They were armed with a couple of Winchester rifles, three double action Smith & Wesson révolvers, fifty rounds of cartridges aplece, and bowie knives. Beyond a single extra blanket, they relied entirely upon their saddle blankets for bedding, while a few dollars and some loaves of bread completed their outfit. They reached San Pedro without mishap Tuesday night, and after resting there, struck out sountward. About noon Wednesday they lost their way in the marshes, and rode around fruitlessly for hours, but finally reached the coast again and pushed on. Just before reaching Oceanside Saturday morning a Winchester cartridge loaded with bird shot was accidentally discharged by the younger boy, and the charge lodged in Thayer's ankle. Fortunately, however, he wore a pair of thick leather leggings, and only a rew of the shot entered his flesh. These, however, occasioned him such pain that he resolved to have his wounds treated by a surgeon, and did so. That night they arrived at San Diego, but skirted the town and spent the night under a deserted shanty. On Monday they pushed on, and, being out of food, Mrs. Thayer took the motor back to town and sold a dfamond ring with which to purchase it. Monday night they slept in a haystack within eleven miles of the border and freedom, but next morning they were overtaken by

BACK TO INDIANA.

Departure of Cronkhite, the Defaulting Treasurer.

Sheriff Ambrose Moore of Fountain county, Ind., left with his prisoner, Augustus Cronkhite, the defaulting treasurer of Warren cointy, for Williamsport last evening. They were accompanied by Mrs. Cronkhite and her child, a three-year-old boy, who only arrived here from the East on Tuesday last, and knew nothing of Cronkhite's arrest until they reached here, and made inquiries for him. The sad reunion of husband and wife, which took place in Chief Glass's private office, was one of the most dramatic and touching scenes that has ever been enacted in that place, where so many interesting episodes have occurred at various times, as Cronkhite had not been informed of his wife's arrival, and was taken completely by surprise when ushered into her presence.

Sheriff Moore, before leaving, stated that he was desirous of removing the impression, if possible, that Cronkhite had stolen the public funds. The facts in the case were that he had relied upon the honesty of some of his employees, to whom he had intrusted the handling of the money, instead of attending to it himself. The result has been disastrous, for the trust had been betrayed shamefully, and after devoting his entire private means to patch up the deficit, which he found to be greater than he had suspected as he investigated the matter, he fled to avoid the disgrace attendant upon the exposure.

The visiting officer was delighted with the manner in which he had been treated by the local officers during his brief stay in this city, and paid the police department the following high tribute:

"I have been all over the country and have made a study of the workings of the police and detective forces of the great Eastern cities, and I have no hesitation in pronouncing the Los Angeles force in point of ability equal to the best of them and superior to the great majority of them. I do not say this with any idea of unduly flattering the department. I merely state the opinions of a man who has watched the thing in many of the largest cities of this country."

Death of Col. Charles Treichel of the Soldiers' Home.

Col. Charles Treichel, governor of the Pacific branch of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers at for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers at Santa Monica, died in his apartments at the home yesterday morning, after a lingering illness, in the 52d year of his age.

Col. Treichel had been in feeble health for many months, and some weeks ago he was relieved of active duty at the home. Since that time it has been known to his intimate friends that the end was approaching. He was that the end was approaching. He was one of the bravest and most dashing cavalry officers during the war of the rebellion, and was several times severely wounded. He was appointed auditor of the New York customhouse by President Arthur, whose intimate personal friend he was, when that gentieman was collector, prior to his election to the Vice-Presidency. He held the position well into Cleveland's first term, and resigned it on account of failing health, when he was offered the post here, at which he died. Upon the organization of the home at Santa Monica he was placed at the head of affairs, and has retained the position to the general satisfaction of all concerned until this time.

Col. Treichel leaves a brother and two sisters, but no family, as he was never married.

The funeral services will take place at the home Saturday morning. After the services the body will be brought to this city and placed in the receiving vault until such time as the relatives can make arrangements to go East, when the remains will be taken to Philadelphia for burial. one of the bravest and most dashing

They came because they knew that special arrangements would be made for their comfort at he great auction, and they were glad to have an opportunity to attend the sale. Postmaster Van Dusen, who was present in response to a request from the board, asking for information with regard to the need for more help and better accommodations in the postmace, addressed the board as follows:

The above is for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893.

The receipts for the year ended January 31, 1894

June 30, 1893.

The receipts for the year ended January 31, 1894, were $145,833, an increase over same time in 1893 of $16,767, and the work done for $26,800, except two temporary clerks at $50 per month each from December 12, 1893, to April 30, 1894.

each from December 12, 1893, to April 30, 1894.

The receipts for January, 1894, were $14,106, against $13,100 for the month of January, 1893, an increase for January, 1894, of $1002, which, with the general depression in business, I consider remarkable.

On July 1, 1890, the clerk-hire allowance was $26,800, and the receipts were $98,000, while for the past year the receipts were $16,000, and the clerk-hire allowance was the same. This does not appear to me to be equitable, and it is impossible for any postmaster to give satisfactory sorvice under the circumstances.

To give you some idea of the amount of mail-matter handled I wil give you a few statistics for 1893:

Number of first-class pieces, 12,549,500; other classes, 8,974,600, making a total of 21,524,100 pieces handled. Pouches and canvas sacks handled:

Pouches received.

50,418

Total 138,134

Pouches dispatched 56,450

Backs dispatched 117,964

292,548.

A careful estimate shows that 9,247,700 pieces of mail were handled for offices supplied by Los Angeles; also that 104,264 pouches and sacks were received and dispatched to those points, making 40 per cent. of the work of the mailing division the proper distribution and dispatch of mails originating at other points.

This shows that the patch of mails originating at other points.

This shows that the Los Angeles office is the great distribution point for all Southern California. There were 216,486 pieces of registered mail handled during the year ending June 30, 1893, making this office the twenty-fifth largest in the United States as to the volume of registrys business. The Los Angeles office exchanges through registered pouches with New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Albuquerque, San Francisco, San Diego, Riverside, Santa Barbara, Pasadena and San Bernardino.

In the money order business, 17,274 domestic orders; 9952 postal notes; 1811 international orders, and 6196 certificates of deposit were issued; and 36,681 money orders and 14,755 postal notes were paid, involving the handling of over $3,000,000.

There were 70,061 letters received without street number and address, over $3,000,000.

There were 70,061 letters received without street number and address, the address of which was searched by our directory clerks; 23,661 of these letters were delivered by carrier; 8218 were forwarded to other offices, and 38,182 were placed in the general delivery. Counting thirty-one days to the month, the average number of unaddressed letters to street and number letters to street and number per day. This makes the mail by searchers nearly $50,000 annually.

In the month of January, 1894, by actual count, there were 3650 forwarded orders filled. In the same month the number of calls at the general delivery was between 2000 and 2100 per day, being an average of three per minute. The general delivery is open twelve hours per day.

was between 2000 and 2100 per day, being an average of three per minute. The general delivery is open twelve hours per day.

On the 26th of this month the directory clerk worked 3354 letters, of which 2200 were placed in the general delivery. There are at least 3500 residences within the city limits that are outside the carriers' free delivery district. Counting five people to a house, it would appear that 17,500 are not receiving free delivery that are entitled to it.

I have recommended to the department that a station be established in the vicinity of Temple street and Union avenue, and three or four carriers radiare from that point.

I have also recommended that Station D be removed from its present location to the vicinity of Washington street and Estrella avenue, and that four carriers radiate from that point.

I have also recommended that two of the carriers at each of the aforesald proposed stations be mounted; thus enabling them to supply a greater number than they could on foot.

I have also recommended that an additional carrier be given to Boyle Heights and one additional to East Los Angeles. Upon a thorough investigation, I have recommended the department to allow eight additional carriers.

I rode some forty miles a short time

ment to allow eight additional carriers.

I rode some forty miles a short time since within the city limits, and think my estimate as to our needs for a fair service is conservaitive. New buildings are continually being erected, and there are few, if any, vacant houses. I have asked the department for an additional allowance of $2000 for clerk hire. I know that times are hard and that money is searce; but it is hard to give good service and pay starvation wages to clerks. Under the present salaries and allowance there is but little incentive for men to do their best.

The receipts for 1894, as compared with corresponding months in 1893, are greatly in excess of 1893, which is somewhat remarkable when the general depression in business is taken into account.

I have assurance from Senators

I have assurance from Semators White and Perkins, and Representatives Cannon and Loud, that they will help us out, and I bekeve that your honorable and influential body would have great influence in securing the desired and much-needed relief.

It is a physical impossibility for me, ir any other person, to give good and satisfactory service under the existing circumstances.

interest by the board, and at its conclusion many questions were asked with regard to the matter of which it treated.

On motion of Director Graff it was moved and carried that the report be received and filed, and a copy thereof sent to our Senators and Representatives at Washington, and to the chairman of the Committee on Postoffices and Postroads, with a request that they do all in their power to carry out its recommendations.

It was moved and carried that John T. Gaffey, the custodian of the Federal building, be requested to arrange, if possible, for an entrance on the south side of the building.

Director McGarvin moved that a vote of thanks be tendered to Postmaster Van Dusen for his able report, and Director Hazzard moved to amend that thanks also be tendered for the efficient manner in which Mr. Van Dusen has conducted the office since his incumbency. The motion was carried.

The Committee on Membership reported favoring the election of Charles L. Strange, architect, who was recommended by J. J. Mellus, and he was elected.

The Hotel Committee reported through its chairman, A. Mullen, that twelve propositions had been received thus far for a site, and said that as soon as possible after the first of the month a meeting would be held and a circular letter would be pepared to be sent to capitalists and hotel-men and hotel journals in the East, setting forth the need for a tourist hotel in this city.

Rehlowitz, according to his own statement, arrived here from San Francisco four days ago, in search of his brother Michael, whom he believed to be living here. Being unable to locate him, he concluded to beat his way down to San Diego, and seeing a long train pull out of the depot in that direction he attempted to board it, but slipped and fell, one of the cars passing over both legs just below the knees.

The train which he attempted to board was merely being switched at the Y, as it happened, and a laborer, who witnessed the accident, at once ran to the poor fellow's assistance. He was conveyed to the Receiving Hospital as soon as possible in the patrol nent, arrived here from San Francisc

The barley market is in a somewhapeculiar condition at present. The propect of a dry season has caused a rapi advance, from about 40 cents to almot double that figure, within a few month and now the ideas of holders and buyer are so far apart that there is practical no business. Several of the rolling mit in this section are refusing to quote price, believing that it will be conside ably higher within a few weeks should no rain fail, and that it will not go mustower, even should there be rain. It difficult to buy any bariey at present these than 80 cents.

NEW YORK, March 28.—There was a slightly increased activity in the stock market today, and the transactions were more widely distributed than usual. The buying for the London accounit was a feature of the early dealings, the purchasers being confined to no particular stock, but including all of the arbitration shares, St. Paul and Union Pacific being the favorites of the foreign contingent. It is generally accepted on the street, that this large buying by the foreign contingent, it is generally accepted on the street, which approaches certainty, that the President will veto the seigniorage bill. The grangers were in good demand, except Northwest, and closed at the highest point touched, with the exception of Rock leiand, which lost with yesterday's closing. There were sales of St. Paul on reports of dangage to the crops, but these were countertacted by the strong London buying, and the stock shows an advance of 1/2 per cent. Of the industrials, Sugar-led in the transactions, and was heavy during the morning, owing to the reported demoralization of the refining trade and under sales for both long and short account, a decline of 1/2 per cent. was recorded, all of which was subsequently recovered on purchases to cover short contracts, but at the close a reaction of 1/2 per cent, usas made. American Tobacco declined 1 per cent, in the last sales, preferred deciling 1 per cent. American Cotton Oil was strong, rising 1/3 per cent, and losing half of the improvement. Preferred gained 1/2 per cent. American Cotton Oil was strong, rising 1/3 per cent, and losing half of the improvement. Preferred gained 1/2 per cent, costing at the best price made. A buil pool in Lead moved the preferred forward, 3/8 per cent. Compared with yesterday's final sales, the depreciation in values, including the stocks already mentioned, ranges from 11/6/11/8 per cent. SUMMARY.

Recovered His Overcoat Recovered His Overcoat.

Some days ago Mayor Miles of Péoria, Ill., while at the Ramona Hotel lost a fine overcoat under circumstances which left no doubt in his mind as to its having been stolen. The matter was reported to the police and Detective reported to the police and Detective Goodman detailed to investigate it, but in spite of his efforts to trace the mising coat he failed to do so. Yesterday morning, however, by the merest accident he recovered the coat and discovered the identity of the thief, who is now in the City Prison. The coat was stolen by Ben Pike, the porter at the hotel, who placed it in a gunny sack was stole, who placed it in a gunny sack and hid it in a swill tank in the rear. Yesterday morning he removed the bundle, and asked an errand boy employed at Littleboy's drug store to secrete it in the cellar for him. The boy promised to do so, but, suspecting that there was semething shady about the transaction, reported it to the drug clerk, who, upon examining the bundle, telephoned to the police.

When arrested Pike stoutly denied that he had stolen the coat claiming that he found it in the swill tank, and asked the boy to keep it for him in case a reward should be offered for it.

Drunk "Roller" Captured. At 6:20 o'clock last evening the atten-tion of Detective Hawley was attracted to the suspicious actions of a toughlooking hobo, who was unmistakably endeavoring to steer a well-dressed young man, considerably under the inyoung man, considerably under the influence of liquor, off the beaten tracks for the purpose of "rolling" him. He accordingly shadowed the couple, and finally saw the hobo stand his drunken companion up against a wall, at the corner of Ord and New High streets, and go through his pockets. Before he had concluded this highly-lucrative operation, for the drunk had considerable money on his person, Hawley pounced upon the fellow and took both him and his victim to the station. The "roller," who gave his name as M. Van Buren, was booked for grand larceny, while William Field, his victim, was charged with drunkenness.

George Morris was arrested yester-day upon a warrant issued by Justice Austin charging him with having dis-turbed the peace of Mrs. Catherine Kolle of No. 822 San Julian street on Tuesday last. Upon being taken into court Morris was arraigned, entered his plea of not guilty and was released upon ball to appear for trial this after-noon.

Battered a Police Officer.

John P. Dider and his wife, Mary, were arraigned by Justice Austin yesterday upon the charge of having battered Mounted Officer Arguello, and upon entering their respective pleas of not guilty and demanding trial by jury, were released on bail to reappear for trial on April 5 next.

SEWER MATTERS.

ng the Rates for Sewage for Irrigating Purposes.

Sewer Committee of the City was in consultation yesterday ternoon regarding what rates shall established for the use of sewage from the outfall sewer for irrigation purposes. A moderate estimate of the rolume to be had for that purpose places the quantity at ten heads or 1900 inches.

The members of the committee are pretty well agreed that the price for day service should be placed at $5 per head. Regarding night rates there is a difference of opinion, some of the members thinking the rate should be but $3 and others being in favor of a $4 charge.

but $3 and others being in layor of a $4 charge.

It is understood to be the intention of the committee to turn river water into the outfall only in such volume and for such lengths of time as shall be needed for flushing purposes and that no river water shall be run into the sewer merely for the purpose of selling it for irrigation.

The zanjas have, during the past few months, been considerably enlarged and somewhat extended in capacity so that it is believed most of the surplus water of the river can be diverted into them and sold at places in or near the city.

The rates charged by the Water Over-seer for the use of water from the city ganjas, inside the city, are as follows: Per head, per day, $2.50; half-day, $1.50; per night, $1.50; per hour, 50 cents. The rates for water taken out-side the city are: Per head, per day, $5; half-day, $3.50; per night, $3.

It was reported yesterday that a number of parties interested in the Pratt-Mansfield litigation had been summoned to appear before Judge Coffey at San Francisco and that the court referred to had directed that Mrs. Pratt's will should be brought along also. As the Supreme Court denied the writ of prohibition to restrain Judge Clark from proceeding in the matter of probating the will, it is difficult to understand how this can be.

Satisfactory Report Regarding the Santa Susanna Pass Road. The Board of Supervisors held their first regular session of the week yes-terday, and succeeded in grinding through a heavy grist of routine busiman Cook presiding.

A communication from J. B. Banning was read by the clerk, in which the writer stated that he would be unable to attend the Sportsmen's Convention to be held in San Francisco early next to be held in San Francisco early next month, as delegate from this county. He recommended that J. H. Schumacher be appointed in his stead, and the board made an order to that effect.

A petition asking for the vacation of certain streets at Downey, another with the same prayer, with reference to a roadway in the San Jose district, and the application of L. W. Higgins for a license to conduct a saloon on Central avenue, were all set down for April 18 for hearing.

Bids on the franchise for the construction of an electric railway along the Mission road to Newton's ranch from this city, were then opened. C. L. Strange bid $325 upon certain conditions specified, and M. R. Frick bid $100. C. W. Stewart also sent in a bid, but it was not accompanied by a certified check for $100, as distinctly and expressly provided in the notice published, it was not read. Stewart inclosed $50 in cash instead of the check, probably thinking that this would be sufficient. Upon motion it was ordered that the bids read be taken under advisement.

the State Board of Trade was ordered referred to the Midwinter Fair Committee:

"The holding of the Midwinter Fair offers an opportunity never again to be presented for the exhibition of the resources of each county in the State. Visitors are now coming in by the thousands. The registry of the board shows a daily attendance of about 5000 people, one-half of whom are non-residents of the State.

"The purpose of the board is to maintain a free exhibit of the productions of the State; to distribute literature in the East respecting the State, for the purpose of fostering immigration to the State; and in the future, as it has in the past, to ald every effort looking to the development of California. It has done a noble work in the past with the support of a few counties. With more support more can be done, and we make this appeal to you for an appropriation of $15 per fronth. The law allows you to do this. Such an appropriation entitles your county to a representation on the board, and an exhibition of the products of the county in the rooms. The secretary is always in attendance to give information about the soft, climate, productions, people and resources of each county.

"The visitor at the fair is amazed at the extent of the exhibition, but he has no leisure to seek the information he wants. There is no central point where he can interrogate any one. The State board meets this want. The rooms are central, and the attendants are there for the express purpose of answering questions."

The bid of the Pirtle Real Estate and Trust Company of par, acquied interest and $87.60 premium, for the $5000

Ocean-school bonds, was accepted.

For some time past the Supervisors have been engaged upon the work of improving or rather having constructed a new road through the Santa Susahna Pass, and yesterday they ordered the demand of the contractor for the building of the thoroughfare allowed, the work having been completed in a highly satisfactory manner. The road mentioned is perhaps of more importance than any other highway in the county. It leads from Chatsworth Park, up the ly satisfactory manner. The road mentioned is perhaps of more importance than any other highway in the county.
It leads from Chatsworth Park, up the summit to the line of division between the counties of Los Angeles and Ventura, and thence down into the fertile and broad Simi Valley. In years past the only road into this valley from this part of the country was over a rough and precipitous way, making it almost impossible for teams to draw a load across the mountain by way of the pass. As a result the produce of the Simi country, which would naturally, to a great extent, find its way to Los Angeles county shipping points, has been hauled to Hueneme and distributed from there. The Supervisors of Ventura county offered to construct such a portion of a new and easy-grade road as would lie in their district, providing the Los Angeles board would build down on this side of the line. It was decided to do this, and at considerable expense the work has been completed. The new route is by far the best and the road has been so cut and leveled as to reduce the climb to an 8 per cent. grade for nearly the whole distance. The Supervisors are very much pleased with the work performed, as evinced by the following report which County Surveyor Street
filed yesterday;
"Gentlemen: Pursuant to your instrctions, Messrs. Hanly, Francisco, Cook, Hay and myself on March 23 proceeded to inspect the compfeted road and according to the specifications, and we recommend the acceptance of the same.

AGAIN ARRESTED. es H. Levering in Custody on Another

Charge.

James H. Levering was arrested by Deputy United States Marshal Harry Johnston in the Coldwater Canyon yesterday morning upon a warrant issued by Commissioner Van Dyke, charging him with having embezzled a certain letter addressed to Mrs. Nellie H. Glea-son of No. 406 Temple street, on Jan-uary 28 last. Upon being taken before uary 28 last. Upon being taken before the Commissioner for arraignment, he was receased upon cash bail in the sum of $500, to insure his reappearance for examination at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The complainant, Mrs. Gleason, alleges that Levering rented a room from her for some time prior to the date above mentioned, and made himself somewhat objectionable by reason of his assurance and free and easy manners. While he was rooming at her house she had reason to believe that some one was tampering with her mail, but, without suspecting any one in particular, she took the precaution of having a padlock placed upon the letterbox obtside the house.

Shortly afterwards, one of her room-

Shortly afterwards, one of her roomers was taken sick, one evening, and Levering, who was in the private sitting-room, hurriedly left to render him Levering, who was in the private sitting-room, hurriedly left to render him some assistance upon hearing of it. After he had left the room Mrs. Gleason's little daughter found a pocketbook upon the floor, and acting upon her mother's suggestion opened it to see whether or not there were any cards or papers which would lead to the identity of the person who had dropped it. To the surprise of Mrs. Gleason, the first thing exposed to view was a letter addressed to herself, which she had never received, but which had been opened. The pocketbook was not returned to its owner, but was taken down to the United States Attorney's office, with the above result.

Levering has been once before arrested, and on trial was acquitted. He says that the whole thing is a piece of petty persecution.

Maj. E. F. C. Klokke was present, appointed by the Chamber of Commerce to confer with the Artistic Committee with reference to the float that body will provide.

In gratitude for the many favors recently extended to the flesta managers, votes of thanks were extended to George P. McLain for gratuitous hanging of posters throughout the city; to Mr. Pridham, manager of Wells, Fargo & Co., for distributing printed matter through their agents; and to the Chamber of Commerce for their generous cooperation and action in providing an elaborate float to lead the mercantile display in the grand opening parade. The details for the several day and night parades are fast being completed by the Parade Committee. In their report it was stated that the fireladdies will turn out in full regalla, with their apparatus handsomely decorated. The bugle corps will furnish twelve heralds to escort the Angels' float. Prominent people are signifying their intention of having their private equipages in the floral-coaching parade. The National Guard organizations of the city will all participate in the night display—Roman candles along the line of march, and that special gas and electric-light. Illuminations be arranged for. With a view to this a resolution was passed to appoint a committee on illumination, the members of which are to be designated by Director-General Meyberg. In this connection it was proposed to make a most brilliant display of lights, in Sixth-street Park. All of the residents of that victivity were said to be ready to co-operate by decorating and illuminating their houses and gardens.

The Committee of Public Comfort reported that several vacant lots around sixth-street Park had been tendered them for the erection of reats and platforms. Here the principal cerèmonies will take place, the Queen be received and the parade reviewed.

The Publicity Committee is arranging to transform eight of the carnival floats into fairy bowers for floral day.

An Exhibition Drill by the Pupils of the Normal School.

Normal School.

Over a hundred girls, aged from 16 years upwards, membero of the funior class of the Normal School, entertained a large crowd of their friends and acquaintances for over an hour yesterday, the occasion being an exhibition drill in the capacious gymnasium of the "Normal." The exercises were under the direction of Theodore Bessing, who has charge of the physical development of the embryo teachers, a position which of the embryo teachers, a position which he has held for four years.

The young ladies presented a neat and attractive appearance in their gymnasium suits of blue fiannel, trimmed with gold braid, and red sashes.

They are far above the average in weight and solidity, showing already the good effects of their regular exercises which they take daily for ercises which they take daily for forty minutes.

The class went through their exercises in two sections. First came marching and countermarching, some of the evolutions being of quite a complicated character, but all performed with a precision which elicited repeated rounds of applause. This was followed by exercises accompanied by music, with poles, rings and indian clubs. Afterwards some of the girls displayed their agility in jumping and swinging on ropes, after a fashion which would have done credit to many practical athletes of the male persuasion.

When it is considered how arduous are the duties which these girls will be called upon to undertake after they graduate, there can be no question as to the importance of their securing sound bodies as well as cultured minds.

Mr. Pierce, the principal, says that no teacher shall graduate from the Normal School who is not physically as well as mentally able to teach.

The Car Started Tos Quick.

E. W. Lewis, a real-estate agent, doing business at No. 119 West First street, met with a serious accident at the corner of First and Main streets on Tuesday evening, owing to the carelessness of the conductor and gripmin of a cable-train. Mr. Lewis, who is 65 years of age, and consequently niot as nimble as he used to be, halled the second of two cars headed for Boyle Heights, the men on the first one having paid no attention to his signal, about 6 o'clock, and, as it approached, the gripman slowed up and applied his brakes. Mr. Lewis had a number of parcels under his arms, and could not therefore, hold on to the side of the car, but, just as he placed his foot on the sideboard, the conductor signaled to the gripman, and the train started off with a sudden jerk, throwing him to the ground. Fortunately he escaped with a split nose, cut lips, black eyes and a severe shaking-up, but will be compelled to remain at home for several days by reason of his accident.

"Father" Throop's Funeral - A Great Demonstration.

PASADENA, March 28.—(Special Correspondence.) "Father Throop, Pasadena's best-beloved citizen, was buried Wednesday. The town donned a garb of mourning, the flags on the public buildings were at half-mast, and from the hour when the remains were borne from the family residence to the Polytechnic Institute, until near the approach of sunset, when they were laid to rest in the the shadow of the mountains "Father" Throop loved so well, there was scarce a gerson in the community who was not deeply impressed by the spirit of the occasion, and few were the eyes undinmed by tears. It was a grand and sincere demonstration of a people's love and respect for a grand old man, and it will long be remembered as the most impressive consideration of a second succession. Upon the casket was placed three leaves of the sago palm, tied with orange and white satin ribbon, representing the family, the church and the school. The decorations at the institute were also elaborate, the entire approach from curbing to where "Father" Throop lay in state, being lined with flowers strewn on either side of the path. Peppers and ferns formed a fine background to Father Throop's picture, which hung above the platform and which was prettily decorated with ivy and calls illies. The plano was banked with roses, and festoons of ivy were supended from the walls to a point above the picture, which was framed in ivy leaves. The desks in the assembly-ball were strewn with purple pansies and violets, and the Throop colors were here and there delicately introduced.

The procession, led by Rev. Mr. E. L. Conger and Rev. Florence Kollock, entered the church to the strains or solemn music, "dates Ajar," played by the band. The seating arrangements were conducted by an efficient corps of ushers, and in term mitutes" time the big auditorium and really marked, and during the exercises that lastet two hours, there was strongly marked, and during the exercises that lastet two hours, there was strongly marked, and during the exercises that lastet two hours, there was strongly marked, and during the exercises that lastet two hours, there was strongly marked, and during the exercises that lastet wo hours, there was strongly marked, and during the exercises that lastet wo hours, there was strongly marked, and during the exercises that lasted two house. No earnest cause appealed to him in vain. That hoped to lead the old earth up and on.

A noble man lies here today;
After long days of wearness and pain. Death drew her restful curtains round his bed, And, though we call, he will not wake again.

Nor would we wish to wake him if we might. For he has seen the Unseen, face this face, on earth is finished; who would dare to call him down again from his high place.

And yet, O friends, it is such men as he That make the world seem empty when they leave;
That he was noble is our comfort now, And yet 'tis for this very cause we grieve.

We'll hide his loving memory in our hearts;

He was not of the church universal. He was not of the church universal. He was not offer the church and a great loss. Reference was made to the fact that he had established the institute on a non-sectarian basis. A recent remark of the deceased was quoted to the effect that, as he grew older, only two things seemed to him to be important — education and Christianity. The speaker's remarks concluded thus: "The last word he spoke to me a few days since was in the form of an invitation and bore sweet testimony to the devoutness of his spirit. It was an invitation, not to see the rooms, or the apparatus or to hear the rectations in the institute, but to attend devotional services. I was passing the building when he approached me and said: I wish you to come sometimes to our morning devotional exercises, it is so interesting to to me to see so many young people assembled for worship. Grand old man! Is it surprising that, ruled by such a spirit, he drew all our hearts to him, and that to divide a proving tribute to him emory? There should be placed side by side another staff, higher, and upon it another flag should be raised to the very topmost point, symbolizing the victory of a noble life and the joy of the soul in the heavenly home. To me, words at such a time as this are aimost meaningless when compared with the silent expressions of love and sorrow so plainly manifested in the countenances of every one about us at this time. Yes, my friends, such universal sorrow appeals to me more eloquently than any form of words, that I hesitate to speak, preferring rather to join the thousands who are silently mourning his loss today. Father Throop's unfattering love for Pasadena's worth. On the other hand, Pasadena's unbounded love and affection for him is surely the grundest tribute that can be padd to his memory; for any man that can honestly earn the affections and esteem of this people to a degree equal to that of our departed friend, must of necessity be possessed of those higher attributes of the soul which would naturally fit him to become a dweller among the biest in that happy home above. ernor-General of India visited Rangeon. One structure, very handsomely decorated to begin with, was still further enriched by being covered with gold mohurs and real sovereigns—valuable coins in India—worth over $50,000, each mohur being equal to fifteen rupees. The coins were stuck to the red cloth with glue that had been especially prepared for the purpose, and which was, no doubt, sufficiently strong to keep the gold pieces safe from the attempts to annex them.

Can This Be True?

How Curious Vessels Are Moided and Decerated from Ordinary Pith.

(China, Glass and Lamps:) One of the most curious of the exhibits at Cfffedgo was a collection of imitation potterly, jewel boxes and vases. The writer saw a vase, ewer or bowl, six or eight inches high, of a mellow straw color which was beautified by flowers in relief of various colors and design. He picked it up for closer examination, when presto! it seemed to lift itself in the air, it was so light. It looked to be pottery, but was made entirely of the pith of cornstalks.

The pith, ground up, forms a pulp from which the vessels are fashioned in a way something like the papier mache process. The ornamentation is then laid on by hand, the petals and stems of flowers, etc., being carefully cut out of the pith, deleasely colored and glued to the exterior. Daleies and clover, asters and forget-me-nots, lilles and roses, bloom out of the neglected corn-pith. This corn-pith ware, or "Zea-pithla," as its inventor names it, is the product of a single young entiressat in a New England town, who has a thriving trade in his curious manufacture. One of the conical features of the business is the receipt of many orders from places like St. Augustine, Ningara Falls, Saratoga, etc., where tourists congregate and where the "Zea-pithia" ware is sold by the peddlers, "Indians" and storekeepers, as a local product for souvenirs of the place.

THE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

The county pedagogues met this morning in the High School building, and the subject of the relative value of studies was continued for a short time. This was followed by an interesting discussion on mathematics, led by Prof. Keran of the Newport schools. The prevalence of opinion among the teachers as expressed by them was in effect that the teaching of mathematics is generally begun with children too young.

Prof. Earl Barnes of the Stanford University and State Superintendent Anderson of Sacramento arrived during the forenoon in time to participate in a portion of the morning programme. Prof. Brown delivered a lecture on the study of children that was very interesting and entertaining.

In the afternoon Prof. Barnes again addressed the teachers on the subject of "Children Punishments." State Superintendent Anderson addressed the institute upon the faults, weaknesses and strength of the schools of the State.

In the evening Prof. Barnes delivered a lecture on the subject, "A Study of Children's Drawing."

A HEAVY DAMAGE SUIT.

Suit was begun today in the Superior Court of this county against the Southern California Railway Company for $30,000 damages. The suit is instituted by Jacob Yaeger of Anaheim, who was unfortunately on one of the company's trains March 29, 1888, when it collided with another train at Orange, from which accident several passengers received greater or less injuries. The plaintin alleges that in the accident he was thrown violently from the car seat to the floor, fracturing several of his ribs and otherwise severely injuring himself, so that he was confined to his bed for several months; that his right hip was bruised and injured severely and that his spine and back has been permanently injured; that he has received other and internal injuries from which he can never recover; that his brain has been injured inasmuch as since the aforesaid accident he has at times had violent and excruciating pains in his head. He, therefore, demands judgment against the Southern California Railroad Company for the sum of $30,000 and his costs of suit.

EVIDENCE IN THE EMERSON TRIAL.

Refugio Yorga, the wife the deceased and the only witness of the shooting, except the two Emerson boys, was the first witness cailed after the opening of court. Her examination was tedious and tiresome, as it was very difficult to make her understand the import of the questions put to her. Her evidence was substantially the same as heretofore given and published in The Times, except that the statement of the old lady that the older brother shot first at her husband, was a little more clearly demonstrated to be guess-work upon her part. In the afternoon Sheriff Lacy was called to the stand and testined as to the sarrender of the defendant and to the story he told at that time-concerning the incality of the trouble, and as to what he learned afterward pertaining to the trouble.

Victor Yorba, one of the parties who arrived soon after the shooting took place was examined as to how the deceased was found, and Miguel Ballestero, the Mexican who lives at the foot of the hill testified as to the time Yorba had lived on the claim. This closed the case for the prosecution.

The defense put the young defendant

(Spare Moments:) On February 25, 1852, there flashed throughout the width and breadth of the United Kingdom the news of the foundering of the Birkenhead steamship, one of the most lamentable naval disasters as to loss of life that has occurred to this country, but which manifested the courage and self-control of British soldiers and sailors under the most trying circumstances. This troopship, built of iron, and paddie-wheeled, and of 556 horse-power, had started from Queenstown, in Ireland, on January 7, 1852, for the Cape of Good Hope, having on board detachments of the Twelfth Lancers, Second, Sixth, Twelfth, Forty-third, Forty-fifth and Sixtieth Rifles, and of the Seventy-third, Seventy-fourth and Ninety-first regiments, all of whom it was conveying to take part in the Kaffir war. In calm weather, off Point Danger, about fifty miles from Simon's Bay, on the South African coast, the vessel struck upon a pointed pinnacle. In about twenty minutes she broke into pieces and went down, carrying hundreds with her, and leaving hundreds more struggling with the sharks among the fragments of the wreck. The rush of the wa-

A LIVELY CHASE.

Four Toughs Captured After an Exciting

Yesterday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock a boy came to the East Side Police Station and reported that he had seen four men coming up the railroad track and acting in a very suspicious manner. One of them, he said, had seen four men coming up the railroad track and acting in a very suspicious manner. One of them, he said, had a bundle and they all kept looking behind them and walked as fast as possible, sometimes running. He thought they had committed some crime and so had followed them in hopes of putting the officers on their track.

Officers McKeag and Romans at once started out to investigate and a Times reporter, who chanced to be at the station, went along to see the fun, if any was to be seen. It turned out that the boy's suspicions were well grounded and the police have reason to be proud of the capture which they made as a result of his information.

As soon, as the men saw the officers coming they broke into a run, but were overtaken at the Santa Fe stockyards, out in the Arroyo Seco, and two of them captured. The other two took down the railroad at the top of their speed, but were cut off in their retreat by Officer Romans, who, after turning over the two men first captured, to Capt. McKeag, borrowed a horse and ran the fugitives down.

While he was gone one of the men who seemed to be the leader and who gave the name of John L. Sullivan, broke away from McKeag and, by fast sprinting, escaped behind some bushes notwithstanding the officer fired upon him with his revolver and several citizens attempted to head him off.

When Romans came back with the other members of the gains he took the three prisoners to the station and locked them in a cell. They gave the names of Charles Smith, Edwin Nagle and William Leach. In the meantime McKeag and a Times reporter were hunting for Sullivan, who had taken refuge on top of a building at the old stone-crusher in the Arroyo, but shally fell from his perchand was discovered by some men at work near by. They attempted to stop

It is thought that Sullivan is the leader of the gang, but there appears to be no doubt but that the other three men can be proven his accomplices. The man Sullivan managed to get rid of his gun during the last chase and, although the officers searched the zanja and surrounding brush most thoroughly, they could not find it. He was heard to tell a bystander that if he would get the weapon and keep it from the officers he was welcome to have it for his own. It is supposed that the fellows have been implicated in several other robberies and burglaries and that the revolver is a part of the booty secured on a previous occasion.
